HISTORY

Initially a monastic property in its majority, the land of 1,763 hectares on which the resort is built came into the possession of Yannis Carras at the end of the 1960s.

The constructions began in 1968, with Villa Galini; a sample of unique architecture and beauty filled with monastic furniture and unique artworks. Within 3 years, the area radically changed thanks to the marsh drainage scheme. Numerous trees were planted, an olive grove of 45,000 olive trees and a vineyard covering 475 hectares were created. Between 1974 and 1980, Village Inn, Porto Carras Meliton and Porto Carras Sithonia opened their doors to tourists and renowned visitors. More recently, in April 2020, Belterra Investments acquired Porto Carras.

PORTO CARRAS DOMAINE

The History

For centuries, the land of Halkidiki has been verdant with vineyards and olive groves. Its wines, famous throughout ancient times, bearing names such as Toroni, Acanthus and Olympus, also referred to in many texts of past ages, were the forerunners of the present-day wines from the Slopes of Mt. Meliton region, now recognized as wines with Protected Designation of Origin (P.D.O) "Meliton Slopes" and Protected Geographical Indication (P.G.I) "Sithonia".

Domaine Porto Carras, the largest organic vineyard in Europe and one of the most historic in Greece, is located on the hills of Mount Meliton. The selected varieties that grow organically there, thanks to the excellent microclimate of the region, have often been in the international spotlight, winning multiple awards. One of the famous varieties and the oldest Greek variety, is called 'Limnio', and is mentioned in the writings of Aristotle.

The vineyard won the international 2015 Wine Tourism Awards for its excellent services, while the Domaine Porto Carras wines have been honored with over 150 awards. Hopping on the wine tasting resort train, Porto Carras' guests have the opportunity to get to know more than 20 varieties of wine as well as its organic tsipouro, and taste local flavors while admiring the view of the mountain Slopes of Meliton and the deep blue waters of the Toroneos Gulf.

The Vineyards

Domaine Porto Carras is the largest organic vineyard in Greece and one of the biggest in Europe covering a total area of 475 hectares. The vineyards have been designed by university professors of Thessaloniki School of Agronomy and the Athens Vine & Wine Institute. Moreover, a systematic study on the suitability of foreign varieties was carried out. Today, the "Meliton Slopes" vineyards serve as a model of organic viticulture, adopting modern international trends while respecting the consumer and the environment.

The Winery

The Winery was built in 1970 along with the vineyards. To protect the beautiful landscape, its location was carefully chosen to be invisible to the passerby, both from the road and the sea. Located at the center of the Domaine, it serves the direct processing and fast delivery of the grapes, aiming at maintaining the high quality of the raw material. Modern presses, stainless steel tanks and a chemical analysis laboratory support all production processes with the latest technological methods.

The Viticulture

Since the early 1960s, Domaine Porto Carras has been showing its innovative character and contributing to the development of viticulture and winemaking in Greece. A brilliant example of this is the revival of the well-known yet varied Malagouzia, which had disappeared from the viniculture for hundreds of years. Limnio, the oldest red variety in the world, was first planted, cultivated, and bottled in the Domaine Porto Carras. The oenological result is exceptional. The Limnio variety has great aging potential and is a cultural heritage, continuously receiving international awards and distinctions.

The Oenology

Professor Emile Pernaud of the University of Bordeaux, father of modern wine-making, established the historical path of the first “Greek” PDO wine, combining the foreign varieties Cabernet Sauvignon and Cabernet Franc with the oldest Greek variety Limnio. The legendary Chateau Porto Carras with a great record has continued winning awards, prizes, and medals.

The production process is taking place with knowledge and care by the experienced oenologists in the modern facilities of the winery. Domaine Porto Carras uses the latest equipment, pneumatic press, special tanks for pre-fermentation extraction, double-wall stainless steel fermentation tanks, automatic fermentation temperature control.

In the winery cellar, authentic French oak barrels, renewed each year, ensure the perfect maturation of the great red wines, especially Chateau Porto Carras, Syrah and Magnus Baccata.

Kalyva Mare is an exclusive villa within Porto Carras Grand Resort available for rent all year round. Nestled over the unique 9km coastline of great natural beauty and diversity, Kalyva Mare is one of those secret spots in Sithonia, Halkidiki that never fails to impress its guests.

The name 'Kalyva', which means 'hut' or 'cottage' in Greek, derives from the Mount Athos Greek word referring to the monastic hut or the living unit operated by a monk. Like the cloisters and cells, kalyves (in plural) are monastic institutions belonging to the dominant Monastery. The monks in these monastic institutions live in small groups, as incells, working mainly with various arts and handicrafts.

The villa dates back to the 70's and has been fully renovated to feature all the essential modern amenities, making it the perfect destination for family holidays and romantic getaways. Kalyva Mare offers its guests the privacy and tranquility of a hidden villa while still being close to the Porto Carras touristic area and the beautiful and lively Porto Carras Marina.
